

Uvarovite

Uvarovite, was first documented 1832 by Germain Henri Hess who named it after Sergei Uvarov (1765-1855), a Russian nobleman and also an amateur mineral collector, and it is and one of the rarest of all forms of Garnet. Technically Uvarovite is a chromium bearing garnet: $\text{Ca}_3\text{Cr}_2(\text{SiO}_4)_3$ with hardness ranging from 6.5 to 7.5.

Uvarovite is also the only consistently green garnet and what a green it is, a wonderful, distinctly 'Emerald Green' colour.

Uvarovite crystals are very rarely large enough to be cut for jewellery individually, however in it's fine Druzy form which is still rare, Uvarovite is used to make very beautiful jewellery. In this form, Uvarovite shows very fine, tiny crystals deposited on a matrix surface. Uvarovite is found in amongst chromium ores in Spain, Russia, Finland, Canada and the Ural mountains in Russia.

Uvarovite is said to possess many unique healing qualities. It is reputed to assist with promoting peace and tranquility, brings love and devotion and is also associated with the heart chakra. Uvarovite healing crystals have been said to promote patriotism, also helps us to find peace, quiet and solitude, but without loneliness. This healing crystal can help with clarifying mental processes, emotional regeneration and is a calming and loving healing crystal. Uvarovite can be used to assist the healing of the following conditions frigidity, toxin removal, heart, lungs, leukemia, bladder and and kidney problems. Many believe that it helps in accuracy and precision as well as helping to transform intellectual energy into the energy of love.

Other claims made for this beautiful gemstone include that it is the perfect stone for fighting with depression. It can renew and enhance the zest for life and help in bringing back the missing passion and vitality.

Also it is said that people who are single and looking for a life partner can keep a Uvarovite in their pocket whenever they go out. It will help them to meet and recognize their life partner. If you want to know that the person is right for you, then keep the Uvarovite under your pillow when you sleep. Your question will be answered in the form of a dream.

